How would you describe the level of lameness or foot health on your farm?

When was the last time you had your herd scored for lameness (Mobility Score)?

Who did the scoring? What was the level of lameness found?

How accurate do you think it was?

Which times of year do you seem to have more lame cows, if any?

How do you think your herd's foot health compares with other UK dairy farms? About average, better (fewer lame) or worse (more lame)?

What is it about lameness that makes you most to want to reduce it?

How do you think foot health is impacting your herd, your business and you?

What cost would you put on lameness within YOUR herd? (e.g. ppl, or £/cow/year)

Which types of foot health conditions do you see in your herd? Use the pictures to help. Rank ones you think are most common on your farm (1st, 2nd, 3rd etc.).
